With school back in session, many parents face the challenge of coping with a child affected by ADHD (Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder). According to the CDC, more than 6.4 million (11%) school-aged children have been diagnosed with ADHD and half of those are being medicated for it.

Concerned about medications like antidepressants and stimulants being overly prescribed, parents have begun looking for a gentler, safer more natural approach to improve their child's behavior, learning experience and concentration.

Attentive Child is designed to support the neural and cognitive functions of your child's brain. It contains safe, effective ingredients, such as DMAE, L-Aspartate and Phosphatidylserine, all naturally-occurring components of brain tissue that promote more neurotransmissions known to help calm restlessness and excitability and promote focus and concentration.

As always, we guarantee your satisfaction.
