Over the years, modern farming methods have dramatically depleted our soils of the micronutrients crucial to our health. Processing practices used to extend the shelf-life of our foods have also created deficiencies. As a result, we have a tendency to overeat denatured calories, feel more tired, not sleep as well and become immune deficient.

Fortunately, essential nutrients lost in the growing and processing of our foods can be found in a food-based supplement called Vitamineral Green, which contains the most micronutrient-rich green super-foods available.

With its many significant health benefits, Vitamineral Green is nature's best source of alkalizing trace minerals, immune-strengthening probiotics, cardio-supporting antioxidants, energy-enhancing enzymes and stress-reducing adaptogenic herbs. One of the most complete food-based nutritional supplements available, it comes in powder or capsules. With cold and flu season coming, it's good to fortify ourselves now.

As always, we guarantee your satisfaction.
