With winter approaching, our immune systems may require extra help with the exposure to an influx of contagious microbes. Many natural remedies help support and strengthen our immunity, but Olive Leaf is one of the most recognized broad-spectrum immune-supporting agents available.

Clinical trials published in Nutrition Research Reviews reveal that Olive Leaf provides an abundant source of numerous synergistic phenolic compounds such as oleuropein and quercetin, which have specifically been clinically verified to have a pharmacological effect in helping to fight bacteria, viruses and fungi.

With an emergence of resistant germs, Olive Leaf is increasingly being used to combat colds, flu, sinus infections and strep throat. Clinically documented to be safe and effective, Olive Leaf is available in capsules, soft gels, liquid and convenient throat or nasal spray.

As always, we guarantee your satisfaction.
